Chamber of Commerce Being Organized

Whirlwind Campaign for Members Starts Today

APPLIES POEM TO THE PRESENT

Owen A. Charles Shows Decadence of Country Town Life by Statistics in Lecture.

ON "THE DESERTED VILLAGE"

Proves Organization is Only Method by Which Trend Toward Large Cities Can be Stopped.

Owen A. Charles, the apostle of the country town, applied Oliver Goldsmith's poem, "The Deserted Village" to present conditions in his lecture at the court house assembly room last night. He presented statistics gathered by the United Census bureau to show the wonderful trend from the rural communities to the larger cities and then gave methods for keeping the people in the county seat towns.

Mr. Charles had a chart which showed that in 1880, 75 per cent. of the population was rural; in 1890, 63 per cent. was rural and in 1910, 59 per cent. was rural. The decrease in twenty years was sixteen per cent.

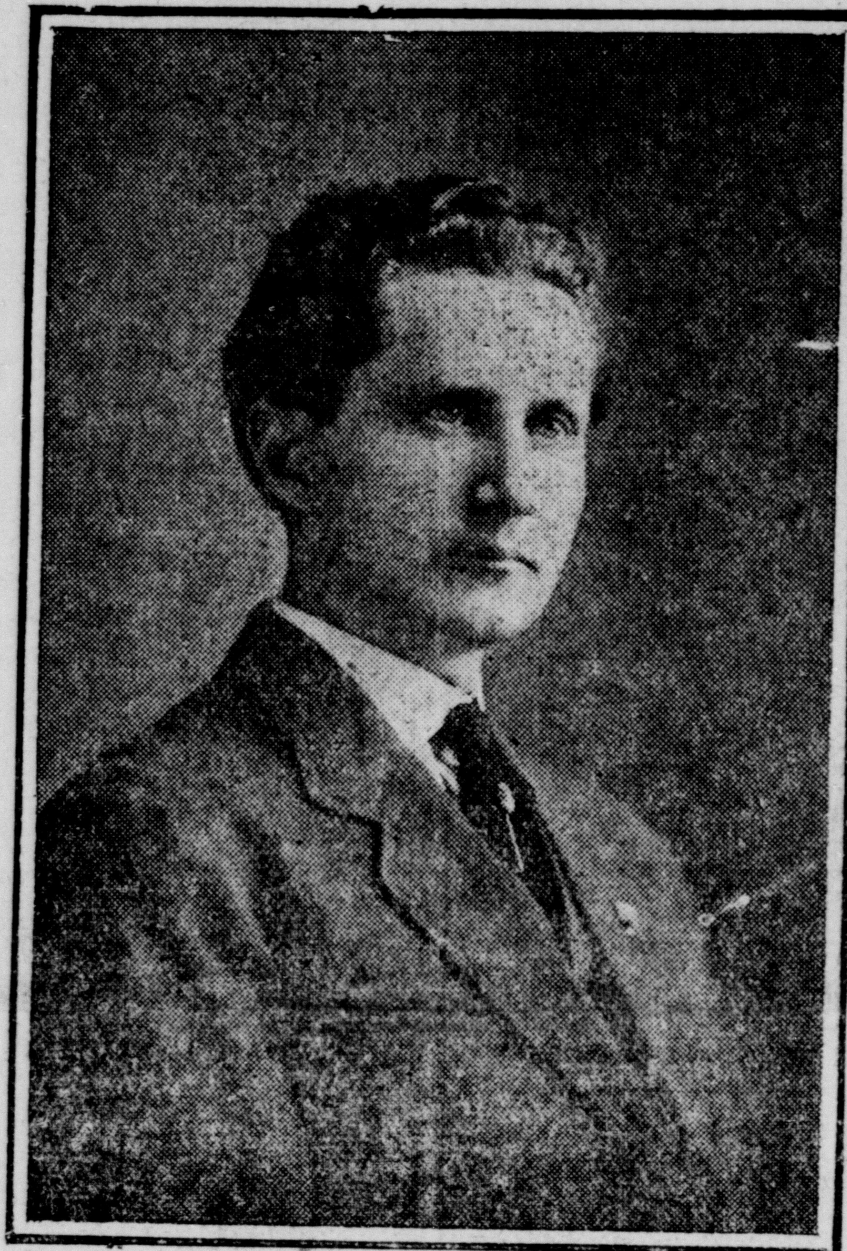

His charts showed that of the 2210 towns in Illinois, 788 lost in population the last decade and of the 102 county seat towns, 28 lost in population the last ten years; of the 2178 towns in Indiana, 678 or thirty per cent lost in population during the same period and the same decline was noted in 24 per cent. of the county seat towns. He declared the same condition prevails in other states, because statistics reveal that in 34 of the 45 states more than thirty per cent of the towns lost in the number of inhabitants from 1900 to 1910.

Mr. Charles said that the chances against the young man who goes to a large city to find his career are about 90 to 10. We think, he asserted, of Abraham Lincoln and a few notable characters of history who went from the rural community and made success, but we forget of the other 99.

He recalled that the discovery of oil in Pennsylvania and of gold in California was on farms which men had sold to go elsewhere to seek that which they had at home and did not know it. He said the lesson in this was not to chase rainbows but to look about at home for the same opportunities which were advertised abroad.

"You here in Rushville," he continued, "could organize a colony of young men in Indianapolis who should be here helping increase the population and doing their life's work in their home town."

Mr. Charles declared that this very apparent trend toward centralization contributed to moral decay and the high cost of living. He said the middleman could not be eliminated because the co-operative plan had failed every time it had been tried. The man who can devise a better scheme than the present one is worth a million dollars the minute he does it, the speaker said.

"Lew Shank," he recalled, "when he was mayor of Indianapolis bought a car load of potatoes and sold them out of the car to beat the middleman. They were sold for 75 cents, a customer could only have one bushel and he had to call and get them. At that very time potatoes were retailing in my home town of Muncie for 18 cents a peck or 72 cents a bushel and they were delivered to you.

"We have to pay for the accommodations we get. Time was when the housewife went to the grocery and bought a supply for the week, but now a day does not pass that the grocery wagon does not stop at your door. This all helps to make living high.

"The mail order business takes money away, but there is no recourse once you buy and you never know what you are getting. Here's a person who goes to Indianapolis and buys, but he can't do any better because they can't sell any cheaper there than any place else. And in addition you pay for the mahogany and the man with the Chesterfieldian airs who bows you in the door.

"What's the remedy? That one word organization. It is an arrangement to take care of details. Men, not resources, accomplish things. This is proved a hundred times a day. It takes men of all classes."

Mr. Charles took up the various departments of the organization he proposes. The transportation department which has a wide scope; the production department which has as its original intent to first breed home industry before looking abroad for new industries; the market department which could accomplish untold good.

"The value of this department was illustrated at Clinton, Ill.," Mr. Charles explained. "The market

FIFTY ADDED THE FIRST DAY

Half Hundred Names Start off List of New Chamber of Commerce in Rushville.

ONLY SHORT CANVASS MADE

Noon Day Luncheon Held Today and They Will be Part of Program Each Day.

The new Chamber of Commerce made a glorious start today when fifty men joined with only a very brief canvass. Because of the excellent start the workers feel very optimistic of the prospect for a successful campaign.

Only a few men were at work this afternoon after the noonday luncheon at the Windsor hotel, but it is promised that many more will be on the job tomorrow and a very thorough canvass will be started in earnest.

The workers had hoped for a half hundred members the first day, but because of the late start and the inability of many men because of other pressing business matters to work today, there was some fear that the goal would not be reached.

Eleven workers were out at the noonday luncheon, but it is anticipated that between thirty and forty men will be at the Windsor hotel at 12:10 o'clock tomorrow to participate in the plans for the canvass. It is urged that every Rushville man who feels that he has any interest

CROWD ROUNDED UP BY POLICE

Men Caught in Ed Tyner Tailor Shop Pleaded Guilty to Intoxication and Fined.

ONE GOT AWAY FROM HARDIN

Smith and Smiley Pleaded Guilty to Provoke and Other Charge Was Dismissed.

The police started to clean up last night and police court this morning took on the appearances of old times. The police put in a busy day yesterday and the final blow off did not come until ten-thirty o'clock last night when they rounded up a crowd of men in the tailor shop of Ed Tyner. The men spent the night in jail.

Ed Tyner, Tom Kirk and Ben Dixon entered pleas of guilty to the charge of intoxication before Mayor Bebout and all were fined one dollar and costs. Tyner paid the fines of Kirk and himself. Kirk is employed by Tyner. Dixon, who is a tailor arrived here yesterday and got in just in time for the "party." He was "floated" by Mayor Bebout. The police were attracted to the Tyner shop on a complaint by Mrs. Charles Moore, who went there after her husband. Joe and John Moran, brothers-in-law of Tyner were also in the place.

The five men were in the hands of the police and were on their way to jail. The Moran brothers were with policeman Hardin. When near the Grand hotel corner, John Moran broke from the police and got away. Joe was taken on to jail and this morning was released as it was stated that he was not intoxicated. The police have a warrant for John Moran and he will face the same charge as the other men. Policeman Hardin had his hands full in trying to take both men and claims that he called to two men in front of the Grand hotel and that they refused to help him. He intends to prefer charges against them for not coming to his assistance.

The police say the Tyner tailor shop was a sight when they entered it. The men were falling all over each other and in the shuffle a window was broken. The police entered from a rear door and had no trouble in getting the men out. Kirk presented a sorrowful sight this morning. His face had come in contact

Almost Completed Job When Passengers Overpowered Him.

(By United Press.)

Warner is alleged to have gone through the Pullman, robbing the passengers as they slept. As he was nearing the end of the car, two passengers grappled with him and succeeded in holding him until the train reached the city. Passengers have identified articles in his possession.

JOE STEWART HAS FIGHT AT DANCE

Local Colored Boy Uses Knife on Robbins and Lands in Connersville Jail.

VICTIM NOT BADLY HURT.

(By United Press.)

Connersville, Ind., Jan. 28.—Joe Stewart, colored, of Rushville, is in jail here charged with assault and battery on Frank Robbins, a local colored boy. The fight occurred last night at a dance in the Odd Fellows hall. Robbins was severely cut by Stewart. The knife cut an ugly gash near the left arm pit, but the wound is not dangerous. "Shine" Rice and Will Pearce, also mixed in the fight and received slight wounds at the hands of Stewart.

Stewart alleges that he was provoked by Robbins. He claims that Robbins ran into him while they were dancing. He resented it and after a few words he pulled his knife and began cutting. The other two men were injured in trying to separate the fighters. The fight almost ended the dance. Stewart will be given a hearing tomorrow morning before the mayor.

Rear Admiral Vreeland Tells Congressmen Today Japan May Support Contentions With Navy.

WHICH IS GROWING LARGER

Congressman Buchanan Leaves the Meeting in Anger After Making a Serious Charge.

(By United Press.)

Washington, Jan. 28.—If the United States does not continue building new battle ships annually Japan will soon become the superior naval force and may insist on the repeal of the California alien law by virtue of its superior power.

Rear Admiral Vreeland, a member of the navy strategy board, was reported to have made this statement to the House naval affairs committee behind closed doors today.

Vreeland was said to have declared that Japan covered the Philippines and Hawaii and that the United States would be handicapped by distance with a light navy.

Representative Buchanan of Illinois, advocate of a little navy, left the committee meeting in anger. He is reported to have charged that the officials of the navy league were interested in corporations selling navy supplies and that they had spent money in congressional districts to influence votes for a larger navy.

Vreeland declared that the Panama canal and Alaska could be taken by the Japs.

BARBER MUST SERVE TERM

Is Happy Thought of Quitting His Trade.

(By United Press.)

Evansville, Ind., Jan. 28.—"I'm Happy" said Clarence Willingham, barber, after he had been sentenced to states prison for from two to fourteen years for shooting his wife with intent to kill. His one hope was that he would be placed in the foundry so that he could say good-bye to shaving people which has been his trade for twenty years. Judge Givens, in sentencing Willingham, painted an alluring picture of prison life. He promised Willingham he should hear the band play, go to any church he wanted and have nice baths.

WILL BE SPENT ON THE ROADS

Money Received as Rush County's

Share of State Automobile Tax to Be Used for Upkeep.

EXPECT MORE NEXT YEAR

Officials Point Out That Twice the Sum or Perhaps More Will Be Received in 1915.

The sum of $1,327.45, which was received here recently by the county treasurer, William McBride, from the auditor of state as Rush county's share of the state automobile license fund for 1913, will be spent from the general gravel road repair fund under the supervision of the county highway superintendent, J. C. King, and his twelve deputies, who have not yet been named.

County officials recall that Rush county will receive much more money from this source next year for the reason that the 1913 apportionment was for only half the year, since the automobile license law did not become effective until July 1st. Next year the fund will include the apportionment for the whole year of 1914, and will be twice as great, and probably more, because the number of automobiles in the state is constantly increasing.

The fund will not be apportioned among the townships in Rush county, as is the custom with many other county funds received from the state. Instead the money will be expended for the general gravel road repairs as it is needed.

The police department will follow the policy which has been in vogue since the law went into force. It is a violation of the law to run machines now without the 1914 license tag, and violation lays the owner liable to arrest.

CHOLERA HOGS BASIS OF SUIT

Lewis and Josiah Bishop Bring Action Against John D. Stewart, Demanding $1,000 Damages.

ALLEGED THEY WERE DISEASED

Lewis R. Bishop and Josiah Bishop, through their attorney, John H. Kiplinger, filed suit this afternoon against John D. Stewart, demanding damages in the sum of $1,000. The case is based on cholera hogs that Stewart is alleged to have sold the Bishops.

It is stated in the complaint that on Saturday, January 15, 1913, the plaintiffs were the owners of 100 head of fine hogs and that Stewart had twenty-four head of hogs that they desired to add to the bunch. They were purchased, according to the complaint, with the understanding that they were sound and free from disease. It is alleged that Stewart, falsely and fraudulently represented the hogs and that instead of being sound they had cholera, resulting in the plaintiffs being put to additional expense in caring for them and losing money because they died.

DON'T TRIFLE WITH COUGHS OR COLDS.

Many Have Filled Consumptive Graves Because They Neglected a Cough or Cold.

You never know how soon a cold will become a serious malady. It may be in the head to-day; in the lungs to-morrow and the next day you may be fighting deadly pneumonia for your life. It's much the same with a cough. Inflamed and cough-worn throat and lungs offer the best chance to consumption germs to begin their murderous work. There's only one way to prevent these deadly diseases getting a hold on you. As soon as a cough or cold attacks you, take Dr. King's New Discovery until you are entirely cured. Sometimes a dose or two will do the business, saving you suffering and a doctor's bill. Thousands of cures like these below prove its wonderful power to cure coughs and colds.

"I feel sure it's a Godsend to humanity," writes Mrs. Effie Morton,

Columbia, Mo., "for I believe I would have consumption to-day, if I had not used this great remedy."

"I take great pleasure in recommending your Dr. King's New Discovery for the benefit of suffering humanity. It's a thoroughly reliable remedy for all coughs, croup and lung troubles. We have used it in our family for fourteen years with the best results. It saved my mother when two doctors gave her up. She had a very severe case of pneumonia and was in bed seven weeks and part of the time 'out of her mind' so that she did not know me. I told father to get me two 50c bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery, which he did, and on taking it she soon began to improve, and four bottles cured her entirely. You may publish this if you wish and I will answer all inquiries, with postage enclosed for reply.

WAS BOUND OVER TO GRAND JURY

Larceny Charge Against Fred Bennett Goes to Circuit Court After State Completed Case.

ALLEGED HE STOLE CHICKENS

Fred Bennett, who makes his home with George Hatfield, was bound over to the grand jury under $100 bond this afternoon on the charge of larceny by Mayor Bebout. Bennett is alleged to have taken five chickens from William Cook of North Main street and to have sold them to Max Goldstein, a grocer in East Eighth street. The state had presented its side of the case when Attorney Joyce for Bennett announced that the defense would waive preliminary hearing.

Several witnesses testified, Goldstein being the chief one. He stated that he purchased the five chickens from Bennett Saturday afternoon. He did not pay him until Sunday morning and stated that he gave him $2.67. The transaction was witnessed by Mrs. M. J. Odgon, who was in the store at the time. She also identified Bennett as the boy who was in the store at the time. Goldstein stated that he went to the Hatfield home yesterday and received his money from Mrs. Hatfield that he had paid Fred for the chickens. The case will be investigated by the grand jury at an early date.

MANY QUIT IN THE SUMMER

For This Reason Professor Thinks January Graduation Better.

(By United Press.) Terre Haute, Ind., Jan. 28.—If graduation came in January instead of June a larger percentage of grade pupils would attend high school, Supt. Waits of the public schools believes.

During the three months summer vacation many pupils find employment and decide to quit school, thus bringing the September enrollment down. Waits said that about 80 per cent of the mid-winter graduates will enter high school while only about 60 per cent of the June graduates enter.

S. M. CULLOM DIES THIS AFTERNOON

Former Senator From Illinois, Who Practiced Law With Abraham Lincoln, Makes Game Fight.

COMBINATION TOO GREAT

(By United Press.) Washington, Jan. 28.—Former Senator Shelby M. Cullom of Illinois died here this afternoon after a long illness. He was eighty-four years of age and was in public life nearly fifty-eight years. Cullom practiced law with Abraham Lincoln at Springfield and often prided himself on his resemblance to Lincoln.

The end came peacefully for the aged statesman. He was in a state of semi-coma all through the morning, only occasionally recognizing his relatives at his bedside. Cullom has been dangerously ill for ten days and his game fight against death astounded physicians. He took to bed with the grippe nearly two weeks ago and the fight against the disease with an enfeebled heart and chronic indigestion brought death.

ECHOES FROM CIRCLEVILLE

Circleville Happenings Always Interest Our Readers.

After reading of so many people in our town who have been cured by Doan's Kidney Pills, the question naturally arises: "Is this medicine equally successful in our neighboring towns?" The generous statement of this Circleville resident leaves no room for doubt on this point.

Hiram Whalen, R. R. No. 1, Circleville, Rushville, Ind., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are a fine remedy and we always keep them in the house. I had pains in my back that made it hard for me to straighten after stooping and my kidneys caused me a great deal of trouble. Doan's Kidney Pills stopped the pains and aches and regulated the kidney action."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Whalen had. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

MEN BLAMED FOR UNCLEAN HOUSES

Franchise League Uses This Argument in Fight For Ballot—Says it Applies to Politics.

CIRCULAR IS DISTRIBUTED

(By United Press.) Indianapolis, Jan. 28.—Men are blamed for unclean houses, bad plumbing, danger of fire, unwholesome food, risk of tuberculosis and other diseases and the immoral influences of the street, in a circular being distributed over the state by the Woman's Franchise League of Indiana.

The government could right these things, argues the suffragist, but because the women do not elect the officials of government and because the men do, "so it is the men and not the women who are really responsible."

"We are forever being told that the place for women is in the home," continues the suffragist argument. "Well, so be it. She is responsible for the cleanliness of her house, for the wholesomeness of the food, the children's health and their morals. But if the neighbors are allowed to live in filth she cannot keep her house clean. And if dealers are permitted to sell unclean and adulterated food she can not keep her food wholesome. And if garbage accumulates she cannot protect her children's health. And she cannot protect the children's morals if immorality is licensed on the streets."

"Women are by nature and training, housekeepers. Let them have a hand in city's housekeeping, even if they introduce an occasional housecleaning."

To Offset Present Trend.

At the Minnesota Academy of Social Science, a gathering was recently told by George Woodruff that the downfall of nations was due to over-populated cities. In analyzing the cause of deaths of nations he made a point of what he called "rural decay" and pointed out a remedy which he described as "the construction of an equalizing rural civilization."

He offered three recommendations—better business, better farming and better living. Under the head of better business he urged improved cooperative methods. Under the head of better farming he suggested soil conservation, greater crops and more live stock. Under the head of better living he proposed better community spirit, rural social centers, modern farmhouses, better sanitation, better prepared food, better rural churches, rural Y. M. C. A.'s up-to-date rural schools with vocational courses, good roads, and rural newspapers.

This program recommended to correct the present evil caused by the popular trend toward centralization is the very thing which the Chamber of Commerce proposes for Rushville. The ideas are identical.

Any person or persons who heard Mr. Charles at the court house last night or who have been following his discussions in the Rushville newspapers, will be convinced that he has the idea and the outline waiting and all we have to do is ORGANIZE and put them into effect.

It behooves all Rushville citizens at this crisis in the life of the city to forget little animosities and GET TOGETHER, the only way on earth that Rushville can accomplish anything.

Up-to-Minute Market Column
A New Feature

With the telegraph news service which the Daily Republican recently included in its daily reports, is a market column which should be of immeasurable value to the many Rushville and Rush county patrons who are interested in live stock and grain.

The market column is strictly up to the minute. The wholesale quotations in this issue of the Republican are the same as Thursday morning's city dailies will publish. The city markets close at noon. This enables the evening newspapers to publish the closing quotations the same as the morning newspapers the day after-noon.

This brings to mind the fact that most of the important news happens in time for the afternoon newspaper anyway and the morning newspaper has very little to do but seek some new detail of the stories which have already been printed in the afternoon newspapers the day before.

Remember that when you read the Daily Republican, you get ALL the local news and also the most important happenings of the day outside of Rushville and Rush county. The home news, of course, is of prime importance to the readers of the home newspaper, and The Republican because of its telegraphic news service, will not shorten or dispense with any of the home news that it has heretofore printed. Because the Republican has always been to the policy of printing all the home news, it has built up the largest circulation ever maintained by any newspaper in Rush county and it still has that prestige.

"Welcome to Worship Today" will Be Written On Back of Every Pew

(By the Rev. Silas Huntington.)
Adopt the Slogan, "Everybody go to church next Sunday." Make it the biggest church-going day in the history of Rushville. Church affiliation is a question that involves our eternity and everyone ought to be interested in it. The church is God's house. Here God has promised to meet with His people. The church is the only means through which a future hope is provided. This is God's unchangeable order of things. The need and reasonableness, therefore, of attendance at the house of worship by both old and young is beyond question.

As unnumbered instances attest thousands who stand without the church in life seek her shelter in death—A very late hour indeed! Sinner and saint alike covet a christian funeral. Is not all this an acknowledgement of the church's influence and power for good, and the soul's great need of her guardian spirit all through life that in death it may be well with the soul?

An invitation from the church and its ministry to participate in its stated season of worship ought, therefore, to command attention and favorable consideration by all men in every walk of life—especially is this true on occasions of specific mention when great things are undertaken for God.

Locally and nation-wide abroad the invitation is heralded abroad to attend church next Sunday. So choose the church where you prefer to attend a gospel service and go. A comfortable pew is awaiting your arrival, across the back of which, figuratively speaking, but none the less true, are written the words in golden letters "Welcome to Our Worship Today."

Fill to overflowing every house of worship in this city next Sunday morning at 10:30 and evening at 7 o'clock. Everybody come.

John B. Thomas Writes of Beauties of the Southwest

Beth-El Hospital,
Colorado Springs, Jan. 19, 1914.
Dear Father:—

I have a few moments spare time and will use it in writing you briefly concerning a trip I have taken to the coast.

The Hospital has had an unusual number of patients this fall and winter and my work has been so heavy and I kept so busy, day and night that I had no time for recreation. Consequently the management kindly granted me a vacation and I used it in the way I have mentioned.

Traveling through New Mexico I saw nothing that I thought would attract a homeseeker either in towns or country. The archaeologist would be interested, doubtless, in the antiquities seen at divers places.

Stopping at San Diego I found a surprisingly beautiful city which has doubled its population within the last five years. They are continually improving and there are now four new hotels in process of construction and many fine store buildings. The fair grounds are located in a park of sixteen hundred acres and decorated with thousands of beautiful trees and plants.

During my stay in Old Mexico I was treated in a every friendly way except on one occasion when I was attempting to photograph one of their forts, I was requested to move to another part of town.

Los Angeles is also a very beautiful city with its streets and lawns decorated with gorgeous flowers and beautiful palms. They claim a population of a half million. The climate seems to be all that can be desired. They have the largest dry goods store west of Chicago, there being in it fourteen hundred clerks. I went out to see the town of "Little Top". There each has one acre which he tends and the produce goes to San Diego and the profits divided. They have a large store and all their supplies come through it. All have good homes and seem to be prosperous. Los Angeles being some sixty-five miles from the coast does not have the heavy fogs of the coast towns.

Going thence to the coast I took the famous glass bottom boat for Santa Catalina island. It was very interesting to see the gold fish, spotted bass and dozens of different kinds of fish playing among the rocks twenty-five to thirty-five feet below the surface. After some two hours out I decided to feed the fish and felt like I would loose my stomach before I got through.

Returning we met a whale, which, the Captain said, was over a hundred feet long. As the whale had the right of way we went around. One of the children said that the whale had a "fountain of his own".

At San Francisco I took in all points of interest and out to the Exposition grounds located below the level of the city for miles along the coast. The buildings are about one-third completed.

Pasadena, like the other towns, looks inviting with its streets and lawns filled with flowers and evergreen trees. The dwellings are very fine and out of the reach of a man of medium financial condition.

I spent several hours at the Buick home which contains forty-nine acres and a tree, plant or flower from every country on the globe, and an old dutch mill. Oranges and lemons everywhere.

The ostrich and alligator farm is well worth a visit. I was told that ostriches do not lay 'till they are seven years old and but one season.

The alligators were a sight, many being twenty-five feet in length. I did not measure them but took the farmer's word for it.

I arrived at Grand Canyon in the night and next morning the fog was so dense that they were not taking any one down on account of the ice on the trail. As my time was limited I asked to be allowed to go at my own risk which request was granted. I procured a guide and with a good mule each, we started. When we came to Jacob's Ladder the guide dis-mounted but I stuck to the mule which went sliding down over the ice some twenty feet to the next ledge.

There he stopped and I looked down seventeen hundred feet, over the mule's head, for he stopped all in a bunch. My knees clung tight to the mule and my heart seemed to jump into my mouth.

We went on with a little more care and came to the "Corkscrew Trail" where the guide again took to the ground and advised like action on my part, telling me of the many cases where horses had lost their balance and went over the precipice. Still I preferred to chance the mule.

After riding for half a day we came to the Colorado river where the canyon can be seen in all its grandeur. I will not attempt to describe it. At one o'clock we started back in a drenching rain which continued until after we reached the top. At which point I was "all in" but I had seen the canyon and the abode of the Cliff Dwellers.

I reached the hospital yesterday and met with a cordial welcome and an abundance of delayed work awaiting me.

I saw many dead cattle while gone, enough, if they had been fatted and butchered, to have kept all Rushville in meat for more than a year.

With kindest regards to all my Rushville friends,
JOHN B. THOMAS.

FARM HOUSE NOT KEEPING PACE

It's a Rebuke to Our Boasted Civilization, According to the Department of Agriculture.

IMPORTANCE NOT REALIZED

Mental and Physical Fitnesses of Man and Wife Both Affected by Character of Shelter.

(By United Press.)

Washington, Jan., 28 —The farm house is pretty nearly the most important point on the farm, so far as the condition of the agriculturalist is concerned, and of the farm house, the kitchen is the most important room. Department of Agriculture experts so held in an article prepared for the United Press today. The importance to the farmer of having an "economical farm house" has been emphasized by the Department's farm architect. He holds that the mental and physical fitness of the laborers both within the house and in the fields is vitally affected by the building that affords the family shelter. "The average American farm home," says the department, "has failed to share in the improvements that are every day being made in agricultural conditions and is a rebuke to our boasted civilization. Relatively the housewife of a century ago, with her fireplace-cooking and log-house cabin, was better provided for than is the housewife today. The most important building on the farm is the home. The health, comfort and happiness are dependent upon its construction and equipment, and unless these matters are looked after, the sanitary dairy-barn, or the economically constructed buildings for stock are of little value. Happiness and contentment in the family are as essential to efficient service as are improved tools and outbuildings. "Although the housewife spends, in many cases, a lifetime in her 'workshop'—the kitchen—and the family rooms, she is not as a rule, capable of planning a house in the highest degree serviceable and comfortable, without assistance. Her help however, is essential to the farm architect, as the result of his plans most vitally concern her. One of the most important details regarding the average American income farmhouse is that it must be inexpensive. The average net annual income of the farmer today, after deducting five per cent interest on his investment is less than $400. This does not mean that the house may not be attractive. They may, if intelligently planted, with the help of vines, shrubs and trees, become the prettiest spots in the landscape and more beautiful and inexpensive than the crowded city houses. The tenant house is growing in importance. The number of rented farms increased by more than 324,000 during the last decade. Today little more than half the farms in this country are operated by owners. "The possible economy in household labor and the conservation of strength of the housewife are two important factors to be considered in the construction of the farmhouse. Pleasant and comfortable farm homes tend to hold families together; but cheerless, unattractive and unsanitary houses are what is driving girls and boys to the cities. Investigations of prisons, insane asylums, and corrective institutions seem to prove that the sins which account for the existence of these institutions are often bred in inadequate and unpleasant farm homes. Therefore this social aspect of the problem is considerable. "The office of the Farm Management Bureau has now undertaken to investigate and solve the problem of making the farm better. Already it has learned that certain features are overlooked in providing economical arrangements for the household, when they might just as easily be provided for. One of the Department's specialists learned that a woman in Pennsylvania had broken down from overwork. She had been carrying coal from the barn to the kitchen for years. When the husband was asked if there was any reason why a coal bunker could not have been provided near the cook-stove and filled directly from his wagon, he answered 'nobody had ever thought of it! "After economy in the construction of the building and in the housework has been attained, attention will be given to the development of beauty. Simplicity of line and good proportion are meant by the word 'beauty.' This simplicity is entirely in keeping with the general plan of economy, but not cheapness. "Double strength glass may even be economical in the long run in a tenant house. A kitchen sink may be a better paying investment, although it excludes a bay window, or a fireplace that has been the pet idea of the farm housewife. "Screened in porches, sleeping porches, double or triple windows, and kitchen conveniences are fine, economical features which even the smallest house plans should contain. A separate living room or parlor is vastly more important than a separate dining room. It is better to eat in the kitchen and have a real living room in which the family can gather, or company can be entertained, than to have a separate dining room and no living room. These separate rooms may have complete systems of plumbing, heating and lighting which involve additional expense—but very little. But the kitchen is the most important room in the farm house.

SEEKS AN APPROPRIATION

Special Fund For Prosecuting Conspiracy Cases Is Asked.

Terre Haute, Ind., Jan. 28.—C. M. Fortune, judge of the circuit court, has asked Nate Wallace, county auditor, to call a meeting of the county council to make an appropriation of $2,500 for the expense of prosecuting the men indicted by the special grand jury. The county auditor has discretionary authority and he says he has not yet decided to call a meeting.

Joseph Roach, special prosecutor, says the conspiracy indictment against Mayor Roberts and four others for causing false registrations last October, will be the first case tried. He said the case is a broad one in the charge that the conspiracy was to have these registrations all over the city and that the trial will bring out the truth of all the many stories of election corruption.

Charged With Having Received Bribe.

New York, Jan. 28.—Joseph Cassidy, one-time Democratic leader of Queens county and a political lieutenant of Charles F. Murphy, is on trial charged with having received a bribe paid by William Willett, jr., for nomination to the supreme court. Willett, convicted last week of having given the bribe, is now in jail awaiting sentence. The alleged bribe was paid prior to the election of 1911. A newspaper published the charges and Willett was defeated.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 28.—Maxim Gorky, the author and foe of the czar, is said to be seriously ill of pulmonary tuberculosis in his Finland home.

THE ANTI-TRUST PROGRAM

Will Be Given a General Airing in Committee Hearings.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Men distinguished in industry, agriculture and labor are expected to discuss the administration anti-trust program at hearings before the house committees that have jurisdiction over this legislation. Hearings on the subject, which will run for a month or more, will be begun this week. Tomorrow the judiciary committee will begin hearing witnesses on the trade relations bill, the measure aimed at interlocking directorates, and the bill that attempts more clearly to define the terms "monopoly" and "monopolization." On Friday the interstate and foreign commerce commission will initiate public hearings on the bill proposing the creation of an "interstate trade commission," and another bill providing government supervision of the issuance of railway stocks and bonds. Present indications are that the anti-trust program will be submitted to the house for consideration early in March.

MYSTERY of the BOULE CABINET BY BURTON E. STEVENSON

Copyright, 1913, by Burton E. Stevenson

"One look was enough to tell me that wasn't no use," said Rogers and glanced with visible horror at the crumpled form on the floor.

"There's one thing I don't understand," said Grady, "and that is why Vantine should want all these lights. What was he doing in here?"

"I couldn't be sure, sir, but I suppose he was looking at the furniture he brought over from Europe. He was a collector, you know, sir. There are five or six pieces in the next room."

Without a word Grady arose and passed into the room adjoining, we after him, only Rogers remained seated where he was. I remember glancing back over my shoulder and noting how he huddled forward in his chair, as though crushed by a great weight, the instant our backs were turned.

The inner room was ablaze with light, and the furniture stood haphazard about it, just as I had seen it earlier in the day. Only one thing had been moved. That was the Boule cabinet. It had been carried to the center of the room and placed in the full glare of the light from the chandelier. It stood there blazing with arrogant beauty, a thing apart.

Who had helped Vantine place it there? I wondered. Neither Rogers nor Parks had mentioned doing so. I turned back to the outer room. I could feel Rogers jerk with nervousness as I touched him on the shoulder. "I just wanted to ask you—did you help move any of the furniture in the room yonder?" I said.

"No, sir; I haven't touched any of it, sir."

"That's all right, then," I said, and turned back into the inner room.

Vantine had said that he intended examining the cabinet in detail at the first opportunity. He and the woman had entered the anteroom together. He had closed the door, and then—

Like a lightning flash, a thought leaped into my brain—a reason—an explanation—wild, improbable, absurd, but still an explanation. Fascinated as by a deadly serpent, I stood staring at the cabinet. There, I felt certain, lay the clue to the mystery!

Grady, Simmonds and Goldberger examined the room minutely. I heard Grady comment upon the fact that there was no door except the one opening into the anteroom, and saw them examine the window catches.

"Nobody could raise these windows without alarming the house," Grady said, and pointed to a tiny wire running along the woodwork. "There's a burglar alarm."

Simmonds assented, and finally the trio returned to the anteroom.

"We'd like to look over the rest of the house," Grady said to Rogers, who was sitting erect again, looking more like himself, and the four men went out into the hall together. I remained behind with Hughes and Freylinghuisen. They had lifted the body to the couch and were making a careful examination of it. Heavy at heart, I sat down near by and watched them.

That Philip Vantine should have been killed by enthusiasm for the hobby which had given him so much pleasure seemed the very irony of fate. Yet such I believe to be the case. Freylinghuisen's voice brought me out of my reverie.

"The two cases are precisely alike," he was saying. "The symptoms are identical. And I'm certain we shall find paralysis of the heart and spinal cord in this case, just as I did in the other. Both men were killed by the same poison—some variant of hydrocyanic acid, I fancy. The odor indicates that, but it must be about fifty times as deadly as hydrocyanic acid is."

They wandered away into a discussion of possible variants so technical and besprinkled with abstruse words and formulas that I could not follow them. The two detectives and the coroner came back while the discussion was still in progress and listened in silence to Freylinghuisen's statement of the case. Grady's mahogany face told absolutely nothing of what was passing in his brain, but Simmonds was plainly bewildered. So, I suspected, was Grady, but he was too self composed to betray it.

The coroner drew the two physicians aside and talked to them for a few moments in a low tone. Then he turned to Grady.

"Freylinghuisen thinks there is no necessity for a postmortem," he said. "The symptoms are in every way identical with those of the other man who was killed here this afternoon. There can be no question that both of them died from the same cause. He is ready to make his return to that effect."

"Very well," assented Grady. "The body can be turned over to the relatives, then."

"There aren't any relatives," I said; "at least, no near ones. Vantine was the last of this branch of the family. I happen to know that our firm has been named as his executors in his will, so, if there is no objection, I'll take charge of things."

"Very well, Mr. Lester," said Grady again, and then he looked at me. "Do you know the provisions of the will?" he asked.

"In the light of those provisions, do you know of any one who would have an interest in Vantine's death?"

"I think I may tell you the provisions," I said after a moment. "With the exception of a few legacies to his servants, his whole fortune is left to the Metropolitan Museum of Art."

"Have you ever learned that he had an enemy?"

"No," I answered instantly.

"He was never married, I believe?"

"No."

"Was he ever, to your knowledge, involved with a woman?"

"No," I said again. "I was astounded when I heard Rogers' story."

"Thank you, Mr. Lester," and Grady turned to Simmonds. "I don't see that there is anything more we can do here," he added. "There's one thing, though, Mr. Lester, I will have to ask you to do. That is to keep all the servants here until after the inquest. If you think there is any doubt of your ability to do that we can, of course, put them under arrest."

"Oh, that isn't necessary," I broke in. "I will be responsible for their appearance at the inquest."

"I'll have to postpone it a day," said Goldberger. "I want Freylinghuisen to make some tests tomorrow. Besides, we've got to identify D'Aurelle, and these gentlemen seem to have their work cut out for them in finding this woman."

Grady looked at Goldberger in a way which indicated that he thought he was talking too much, and the coroner stopped abruptly. A moment later all four men left the house.

Dr. Hughes lingered for a last word.

"The undertaker had better be called," he said. "I can send him around on my way home."

I thanked him for assuming this unpleasant duty. As the door closed behind him I heard a step on the stair and turned to see Godfrey calmly descending.

"I came in a few minutes ago," he explained, in answer to my look, "and have been glancing around upstairs. Nothing there. How did our friend Grady get along?"

"Fairly well, but if he guesses anything his face didn't show it."

"He's a stupid ignoramus."

"Oh, come, Godfrey," I protested. "you're prejudiced. He went right to the point. Do you know Rogers' story?"

"About the woman? Certainly. Rogers told it to me before Grady arrived. Grady has heard all the evidence, but does he know who that woman was?"

"Of course not," I said, and then I looked at him. "Do you mean that you do? Then I'm an ignoramus too!"

"My dear Lester," protested Godfrey, "you are not a detective. That's not your business, but it is Grady's. At least, it is supposed to be. On the strength of it he has been made deputy police commissioner, in charge of the detective bureau."

"Then you mean that you do know who she was?"

"I'm pretty sure I do. That is what I came back to prove. Where's Rogers?"

"I'll ring for him," I said and did so, and presently he appeared. "Mr. Godfrey wishes to speak to you," I said.

"We'd better give him his instructions about the reporters first thing, hadn't we, Lester?" he inquired.
"Which reporters?" I queried.
"All the others, of course. They will be storming this house, Rogers."

Rogers, Clutching Wildly at His Collar, Spun Half Around.

before long. You will meet them at the door; you will refuse to admit one of them; you will tell them that there is nothing to be learned here and that they must go to the police. Is that right, Lester?"

"Yes, Ulysses," I agreed, smiling.

"And now," continued Godfrey, watching Rogers keenly, "I have a photograph here that I want you to look at. Did you ever see that person before?" and he handed a print to Rogers.

The latter hesitated an instant and then took the print with a trembling hand. Stark fear was in his eyes again. Then slowly he raised the print to the light and glanced at it.

"Catch him, Lester!" Godfrey cried and sprang forward.

For Rogers, clutching wildly at his collar, spun half around and fell with a crash.

"Get some water, quick!" Godfrey commanded sharply as Parks came running up. "Rogers has been taken ill."

And then, as Parks sped down the hall again, I saw Godfrey loosen the collar of the unconscious man and begin to chafe his temples fiercely.

"I hope it isn't apoplexy," he muttered. "I oughtn't to have shocked him like that."

At the words I remembered and, stooping, picked up the photograph which had fluttered from Rogers' nerveless fingers. And then I, too, uttered a smothered exclamation as I gazed at the dark eyes, the full lips, the oval face—the face which D'Aurelle had carried in his watch!

LEAVES KIDNEYS IN WEAKENED CONDITION

Doctors in all parts of the country have been kept busy with the epidemic of grip which has visited so many homes. The symptoms of grip this year are often very distressing and leave the system in a run down condition, particularly the kidneys which seem to suffer most, as almost every victim complains of lame back and urinary troubles which should not be neglected, as these danger signals often lead to dangerous kidney trouble. Druggists report a large sale on Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, which so many people say soon heals and strengthens the kidneys after an attack of grip. Swamp-Root is a great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, and being an herbal compound, has a gentle healing effect on the kidneys, which is almost immediately noticed in most cases by those who try it. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., offer to send a sample size bottle of Swamp-Root, on receipt of ten cents, to every sufferer who requests it. A trial will convince any one who may be in need of it. Regular size bottles 50c. and $1.00. For sale at all druggists. Be sure to mention this paper.

If the Legislature Would Pass a Law---

That every vehicle user in Rush County had to buy his vehicles where he could get the best bargain for his money and leave it to the majority of vehicle users in the county to decide, you would have to buy your next one from us or break the law. There is no question about this, as the majority has already decided we give them more value for their money than they can get elsewhere and have backed up their judgment by buying their vehicles from us. The road service you can get out of one of our buggies makes it an easy proposition for us to sell a customer the second time and also makes it easy for us to sell his neighbors and friends as our vehicle users are always satisfied and make us customers. We still have a few of those nice, roomy Storm Buggies in stock and also have a sample of our 1915 Storm Buggy that you want to see. It is the first Storm Buggy ever built that has sliding doors that can not rattle and also has several new features you want to see. Pittsburg Editor Challenges Competitor to Sign Pledge.

EDITOR MOORE MAKES THE ISSUE PERSONAL

Challenges Senator Oliver to Sign Abstinence Pledge.

Pittsburg, Jan. 28.—After Senator G. T. Oliver's newspapers had announced that they no longer would accept liquor advertisements, Alexander P. Moore, the husband of Lillian Russell and editor of the Leader, announced in an editorial that he would sign a life pledge with Oliver to refrain from personal use of liquor.

Following is Senator Oliver's announcement: "In order to make its business policy harmonious with the editorial utterances, the Gazette-Times (and Chronicle-Telegraph) will hereafter neither seek nor accept advertisements of intoxicating liquors. All existing liquor advertising contracts will be cancelled if possible; those that cannot be cancelled will not be renewed upon their expiration."

Following is part of Moore's editorial: "Further, George T. Oliver should publicly proclaim his intentions to refrain from any personal use of liquor and banish it from his home. "If he is willing to go this far the editor of the Leader offers to sign with him a life pledge not to taste liquor of any kind."

The Court Sustained Him. Sullivan, Ind., Jan. 28.—Charles Hanna, principal of the Pleasantville schools, was acquitted in the court of a justice of the peace of the charge of assault and battery on Bruce Hilderbrand, aged fourteen. The boy was whipped for leaving school, and the court held that, although the punishment was severe, it was not unreasonable.

Elevator Repairer Killed. Winchester, Ind., Jan. 28.—O. I. Jones, thirty-eight years old, a prominent resident of Ridgeville, north of here, was killed while replacing an elevator belt. Jones's head was crushed and partly scalped.

Directors of the National City bank of New York, the largest financial institution in the United States, voted to join the federal reserve system.

President Wilson probably will make speeches in Indiana this year in behalf of Democratic congressional candidates, who may need his help.

Following a quarrel with his father over money matters, Edward Simpson, a medical student at Hillsbury, Ont., shot and killed his father and mother.

Benjamin Dickerson, a negro charged with the murder of a traveling salesman at Oklahoma City, was removed from jail by a mob and hanged.

The ghost of Matthew Vassar, founder of Vassar college, is asserted to be haunting an old homestead farmhouse once owned by him near Poughkeepsie.

Professor Stilson, a Parisian teacher of the tango, has sued Cardinal Amette, archbishop of Paris, for $5,000 damages because of the latter's denunciation of the dance.

Mexican rebels are swarming all through the Puebla mountains and eastern Hidalgo. They have burned the towns of Atotonilco and Nanacamilpa and destroyed all the haciendas in the district.

President Wilson has signed an executive order putting into operation on April 1 a permanent government for the Panama canal zone and naming Colonel George W. Goethals as the first civil governor.

WAR DEPARTMENT IS INTERESTED IN PLAN

Move to Enlarge Quartermaster's Depot at Jeffersonville.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Plans for enlarging the quartermaster's depot at Jeffersonville were discussed by the secretary of war, Senator Shively and Representative W. E. Cox of the Third Indiana district. If the plans are carried out the army supply station at the southern Indiana city will be made a more important distributing center, and all the harness, saddlery and shoes that are required by the war department will be manufactured there.

Secretary Garrison told Mr. Cox that he was in sympathy with the project to enlarge the Jeffersonville depot, and he listened intently while Mr. Cox pointed out the many reasons why part of the equipment of the army ought to be manufactured on this government reservation.

"I told the secretary," said the Indiana representative, "that the buildings comprising the depot at Jeffersonville cover seventeen acres and that only part of them are now being used. He seemed greatly interested when I explained that the federal government could save at least 20 per cent in the cost of shoes used by the army, if it manufactured them at the Jeffersonville depot, instead of buying them under contract."

Representative Cox will appear before the committee on military affairs soon to urge the enlargement of the depot along the lines that he suggested to Secretary Garrison. He has under preparation a bill authorizing the appropriation of $250,000 with which to supply the necessary leather working machinery and pay the salaries of additional expert workmen.

PRESIDENT HAS ABDICATED

The Republic of Hayti is Left Without a Government.

Washington, Jan. 28.—The secretary of the navy has received a message from Admiral Badger, in command of the Atlantic fleet at Guantanamo, announcing that the president of Hayti has abdicated, leaving the country without a government. AFTER FIVE YEARS

Winthrop Child Was Restored to Health by Vinol.

"Five years ago our little girl had a severe attack of diphtheria which left her subject to bronchitis and stomach trouble. She has been almost constantly under medical treatment. I have tried also two or three remedies containing cod liver oil but found her stomach rebelled against the oil. Reading your description of Vinol I decided to try it and did so with most astonishing results. I cannot begin to tell you how she has improved because you do not know what a little sufferer she was for five years. She has gained ten pounds since she commenced to take Vinol, and the story of what Vinol has done for her is only half told in this letter." Mrs. Adelaide Mulloy, Winthrop, Mass.

Vinol contains all the healing curative properties of cod liver oil, without the oil, and tonic iron added. That is why it helped this little girl after other remedies had failed.

We ask mothers of weak, sickly children to try Vinol on our offer to give back your money if it fails to help them. F. B. Johnson & Co., Druggists, Rushville, Ind.

WORKED UP OVER T. T. AS CANDIDATE

Administration Reported to be Very Greatly Exercised Over Talk of Boss Running For Senate.

SHIVELY SEES PRESIDENT

(By United Press.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.—The administration is reported to be greatly exercised over the entrance of Thomas Taggart into the Indiana senatorial contest. This subject was discussed at a White House conference last night with William F. McCombs, chairman of the Democratic National committee. The statement was made by friends of both candidates that they believed the president would support their man. Secretary Tumulty said, "The president is not taking any part in local fights anywhere and has not endorsed any senatorial candidates." Senator Shively's friends, however, claim that the president will take a pronounced stand against Taggart in case he announces himself as a candidate for the place. Senator Shively saw the president today.

DEFENSE UPHOLDS ITS PLEA TODAY

Testimony at Trial of Walter Runyan For Killing Arlie Stull Shows Stull Threatened Runyan.

FOOTBALL TEAM MEN TALK

(By United Press.)

Crawfordsville, Ind., Jan. 28.—The defense in the trial of Walter Runyan for the slaying of Arlie Stull struck another hard blow today in support of the defense's plea. To members of Stull's football team testified that the afternoon of the tragedy Stull appeared at practice looking very downcast and played poorly.

When C. E. Sumner and Leveret Olin, fellow players, asked Stull what was the cause, he replied: "If you'd been through what I've been through you'd wish you were in hell." When pressed further, Stull said: "I had trouble with Walter Runyan and I feel like beating hell out of him."

The defense expected to open today with Mrs. Runyan on the stand, but she was too ill to come to court. Fifteen character witnesses gave the defendant a splendid reputation for "peace and quietude."

Jesse Smith and Gail Smiley, who were arrested yesterday afternoon pleaded guilty to charges of provoke before Squire Kratzer. The cases were turned over to the squire. The provoke charge was preferred by M. J. Ogden. The charges of intoxication were dismissed when they entered pleas of guilty to the provoke charges. Ogden claims they provoked him and on motion of the prosecutor the intoxication charges were dismissed when the two entered pleas of guilty. Smiley paid his fine and Smith's was stayed.

DEPUTY LOOKS OVER THE GROUND

Isaac Hahn From State Fire Marshal's Office returns to Indianapolis Today.

HE FINDS SOME FIRE RISKS

Persons Who Own Property Are Aware of His Investigations and Will Act on Suggestions.

Isaac Hahn, a deputy from the state fire marshal's office, returned to his home in Indianapolis today after spending a couple of days here looking over the ground and picking out fire hazards which should be done away with.

Mr. Hahn did not make any report, but it is likely that he will make some recommendations looking toward the reducing of some fire risks about Rushville. Persons whose property was examined by Mr. Hahn are aware of the fact and know what will be expected of them.

It will be recalled that recently Fire Chief Walter Easley was notified from the fire marshal's office that the second story of the Commercial block should be cleaned up and an old frame shack in First street between Main and Morgan streets which belongs to William Frame, should be razed within a given period of time.

The improvements to reduce the fire hazards were all made in the Commercial block and most of the lumber from the old Frame building has been hauled away. The state fire marshal's office, by carrying out every place the program which was followed here, hope to materially reduce the number of fires in Indiana each year.

Fire Chief Easley was informed by Deputy Hahn while he was here that fire chiefs had a right to use their own judgment in regard to the reduction of fire hazards without instructions from headquarters. Mr. Easley thought that it was necessary to have orders from the main office before ordering any improvements or making any suggestions.

committee, which had a few women on it, investigated the local stores to see if there was really any cause for leaving Clinton to buy. They made inquiries as to prices in every store in town and then published their findings. Not in a single instance did the investigation reflect on the Clinton business houses. The market committee showed that Clinton could do lots better for its people and its town by leaving its money at home.

He pointed out how the agriculture department could, in addition to working for a county agent, foster a better feeling between the townspeople and the farmer. He dwelt only a moment on the city beautiful department in devising plans to take care of the young people. The fakes and fakirs department could accomplish much in driving out the outside people who come in with grafts and take money from the people by unfair means.

"Then here's one who will ask," he continued, "What do I get out of it?" You get whatever you put into it and one generally gets what they deserve. Let's don't be selfish. Don't stay out to your own detriment because there is some one in you do not like. That is the most dispicable attitude. Consider the welfare of the whole community and let's get together and accomplish things."

The Men's Bible class of the First Presbyterian Sunday school will meet at the church tonight at seven-thirty o'clock and go in a body to the home of William Helm for a social hour.

MUST PROTECT COGS.

(By United Press.)

Indianapolis, Jan. 28.—The state supreme court has held where an employee was operating a lever by means of which he threw machinery into gear or out of gear and his hand slipped from the lever into the unguarded cogs, that the employing company was liable for the injury. The court declared that if the cogs had been guarded the accident would not have occurred and that the slipping of the hand was not a primary cause of the accident.
